M107A1™: RECOIL OPERATED SEMI-AUTOMATIC

M107A1 rifle systems are fed from a 10 round detachable box magazine and functions on a recoil operated design. An all-new bolt carrier group has been created, which is key to making the rifle suppressor-ready from the factory. Driven by the demands of combat, every component was re-engineered to be lighter yet stronger resulting in a 4 pound weight reduction. This rifle also features a temperature resistant cheek piece, lightweight adjustable monopod and bipod, 24" scope rail with a 27 MOA taper and forward receiver capable of accepting side accessory rails.

M107A1 rifle systems include one 10 round magazine, bipod, monopod, and hard carrying case. All barrels are parkerized black.

Suppressors

QDL Suppressors

The Barrett Quick Detach Large (QDL) Suppressors are made of heat treated high strength alloys and incorporate a 360 degree welded core to make it the safest large bore suppressor on the market. The suppressor mounts to the rifle by simply sliding it over the adapter mount muzzle brake and rotating the locking collar. The QDL also features an auxiliary two-port muzzle brake for reduced recoil when firing suppressed. The QDL is designed to work with the M107A1 rifle and also with the M95 and M99 once the accessory adapter mount is installed on the barrel. NOT TO BE USED ON THE M82A1 RIFLE.

QDL suppressors include a MOLLE carrying case and a mirage mitigating cover.

The AM and DC suppressors are designed to be used on precision rifles where an emphasis is placed on maximum precision, minimal and repeatable Point-of-Impact shift, as well as sound and flash suppression.

BORS® Version 2.0: ON BOARD BALLISTIC COMPUTER

BORS (Barrett Optical Ranging System) is an integrated ballistics computer that mounts directly on the riflescope and couples to the elevation knob. Drawing from several tables and taking into account a number of real-time external factors, it automatically gives the shooter the exact yardage at which a bullet will hit. Once the distance to the target has been estimated, the computer can be put into action by simply turning the elevation knob until the LCD displays the target's range. Three internal sensors automatically calculate the ballistic solution. BORS compensates for temperature, changes in air pressure, and aiming at an upward or downward angle. BORS even determines if the rifle is canted. BORS kit includes the proprietary Barrett Ballistic Software (requires Windows XP or higher, and is not directly MAC OS compatible) that is pre-programmed with a library of common projectiles and velocities selected by Barrett. It also includes a BORS data cable that allows the user to program custom loads on a personal computer and transfer them directly to BORS.

SCOPE RINGS & OPTICS ACCESSORIES

ZERO-GAP® Rings

The unique scope clamping design of Barrett ZERO-GAP Rings takes care of some old optics mounting challenges. In the past, great attention was required when securing scope ring caps to maintain an equal gap between the lower ring and top cap on each side. There was also the possibility of rotating the scope out of perfect vertical reticle alignment while torquing the cap screws in a side-to-side pattern. These problems are eliminated with the ZERO-GAP design. Simply secure the cap on the indicated side until there is no gap between lower ring and cap, check for perfect reticle alignment, and then torque the remaining side to the required specification. Zero-Gap rings are available in four heights to fit any rifle/optic configuration.

ExRings®

ExRings with Pin-Lock™ and ZERO-GAP technology have a dual setting MOA taper at 15 or 40 MOA, utilizing the riflescope's precise internal elevation adjustment by aligning the scope for long-range shooting. The front ring assembly is designed with a precision fit pivot that allows the scope to elevate in the rear, but tolerances ensure no unwanted movement. The rear ring assembly houses the Barrett Pin-Lock technology that allows the user to select from two MOA settings. Once an MOA setting is selected and the ring's four cross bolts are torqued to specification, Barrett ExRings become a rock-solid mount with the correct taper to maximize the potential of your rifle system.
